41st Annual Aqueous Media Exhibition

"Semi-Dress Rehearsal" by Gene Gill - Spring 2006 Sweepstakes Award

Tualatin Heritage Center

Tualatin, Oregon - April 7 thru April 25, 2006

41st Annual Aqueous Media Exhibition

WATERCOLOR SOCIETY OF OREGON

Ruth Armitage

Linda Nye and Garve Beckham made a great duo as chairs for our Spring Convention in Tigard. They assembled a team of willing and enthusiastic volunteers to bring us together for art, sharing and learning. The brand new Tualatin Heritage Center was a terrific backdrop for the show and we'd like to thank the volunteers who helped host the show there. The facility was wonderful.

Artists in attendance enjoyed paint-outs, drawing, a museum tour, a tour of Nike's campus and the art there, lectures, critiques and a terrific trade show. And, of course, we all enjoyed meeting and making artist friends from across the state. The reception and banquet went off without a hitch, thanks to careful planning. Thanks to all who volunteered and participated. The paintings showed a variety of styles, and included several entries by new members. It is always a treat to see the award winners chosen. Congratulations to you if your painting was selected!

Our organization boasts over 800 members and we commit ourselves to exhibit quality watermedia works and provide educational opportunities for members and the community. If you know of an artist who might be interested, refer them to our website: www.watercolorsocietyoforegon.com for more information. We are currently seeking at-risk youth to apply for the Bonney Lamb Memorial Scholarship.

It was a treat to meet renowned painter Tony Couch who joined us from Georgia. Many of us were introduced to watercolor by his book, "Watercolor - You Can Do It." His warm demeanor and gentle humor made the weekend even more enjoyable! Tony offered encouragement to new and experienced painters alike. I hope many of you will enter and attend our next show in Gold Beach.

Ruth Armitage, WSO President

The Juror - Tony Couch

Tony Couch with WSO workshop demo

My congratulations to all who entered this exhibition; the quality of the work submitted was in general quite good - better than many I have judged.

My only lament is that in selecting the paintings for the awards, so many works of merit had to be left out. As usual, when selecting the top of them, the differences in merit between the paintings was very narrow - a measure of quality exhibitions.

Of course, we are all happy for those who garnered these awards, however, my thoughts are with those who did not. Well I remember the frustration of entering shows and coming away with nothing - being rejected from the exhibition even. And I expect it to happen to me many more times before I put my brushes away for the last time.

I cannot forget when, several years ago, I quit painting altogether for a six year span because of where the award ribbons went (not to me) at a local exhibition I had entered in Atlanta. In retrospect, I see no one was impressed, and no one was hurt by my action but me. How much further ahead would I be now if I hadn't wasted those six years?

It's true some jurors you will face are hardly qualified; some are biased and there will always be politics. You are forever at the mercy of the jury selection committee and their decision could be based on nothing but exhibition space or economics.

But as you gain experience you will learn to avoid the worst of these. Then, facing a juror or jury you trust, the only practical attitude for you and I is this: "I didn't make the cut in this show because I'm not good enough - YET."

The significant word here is YET. Just as sure as you persevere; study - paint - learn; awards will come your way. And by the way, you will STILL be rejected on occasion!
